

THE MORNING POST.

SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 1, 1834.

STENOGRAPHIC GLIMPSES OF CONGRESS.
No. XLIX.

Washington, Jan. 27, 1834.—The House was occupied to day in private business. The Senate crowded with a brilliant audience to hear Mr Forsyth of Georgia—who, by the way, is a Virginian; as also nine others at least of this body, viz: Rives, Tyler, Preston, Bibb, Clay, Grundy, Ewing, Waggaman, and Poindexter.

Before the order of the day was called, Mr Frelinghuysen presented a "distressing" memorial from New Jersey; and made a short speech, exhibiting, a degree of morbid sensibility less calculated for the meridian of the "collective wisdom," than the collective humanity, of the nation—better adapted to express his own fears and apprehensions, than to convince others of any real cause for their existence. He spoke in the very tone of despair. One would have thought the destroying angel was abroad, and had marked no lintels as a pledge he would spare any of us from destruction. This gentleman, I believe, is a religious man, certainly a philanthropist, and doubtless a lover of his country; but his pathetic appeals, in the Senate of the United States, are not calculated to carry conviction with them. Every body understands that the present is a contest between the Bank of the United States and the Government—a great struggle for power—a battle for supremacy; and the Bank has endeavored to thrust the people in the front ranks, as David did Uriah; that it might get possession of Uriah's beautiful wife, the Deposites! The Bank can't relieve the people unless they have the people's money, now in the treasury, secured, with all the solemnity of the law, and guarded by the Chief Magistrate with all a dragon's vigilance. How can I pay you, said Sheridan to his creditors, unless you lend me the money? How can I relieve you, says the Bank, to the people, unless you surrender up your revenue?

The people are in a fair way to comprehend all this sophistry. Right or wrong, they have tried the issue between the Bank and the Executive twice, once at the Presidential, and again at the Congressional Election. It matters little how a majority of the Senate may vote against the known will of their constituents; it is not in their power, thank God, to awe or control that will; the Chief Magistrate of the Union is with them; the Representatives in Congress are for them; and the "monster must be crushed!"

The debate on the repeal of the Force Bill was the order of the day; but was postponed another fortnight on motion of Mr Calhoun; and Mr Forsyth took the floor on the eternal deposit question.

I was very happily disappointed in the able manner in which he acquitted himself. I had erroneously been led to suppose from his fleetness in a short race, that he would be distanced in a long one; far from it—he carried himself gallantly through the course, and came to the stopping post at 3 o'clock, without freighting or frothing, or even blowing in the least. There is no gentleman in the Senate, uniting in an equal degree with him, the opposite attributes of readiness, and research;—an instantaneous promptness of answering any argument or objection thrown out by any opponent; and an erudite preparation for encountering all the windings and sophistry of a long and labored speech. The opposition have hardly dropped a glove during the session, when the duty did not devolve on him to fling it back to them. He unites the adroitness of the Mameluke, with the momentum of the Prussian grenadier.

Mr Forsyth's manner is peculiarly Virginian; respectful in his language; courteous and complimentary to his antagonists. Without ever exhibiting passion, he evinces deep feeling. His voice is peculiarly melodious, and without talking fast, the words seem to melt into each other, like one continuous sound, not unlike the enunciation of Judge Story, though with less compass of notes. He uses but little gesture; and his most emphatic passages are always in an undertone, which produces a solemn effect, and leaves a deep impression—it is the still, small voice in which he pours out heart and soul and feeling, charming the audience into a silence, as if they were listening to the last fading notes of an Eolian Harp, when they felt the spirit of the wind was fading away.

He is about 45 or 50 years of age, but would pass for less; his person upright and finely proportioned; height about five feet ten; with a full head of hair, but quite gray; his countenance fair and pleasing; with a pleasant smile always playing round his lips and eyes; his nose is aquiline; chin rising; eyes light. He has a slight and agreeable sibilation in his speech. Though I shall touch upon a few points in his argument, I must refer you and your readers to his speech for an enjoyment I cannot impart in my brief glimpses. I have endeavored to convey only what you would not obtain from the speech—something of his person, and manner—precisely those things which every body likes to know, but nobody hardly takes the trouble to tell.

He commenced by saying the subject could not be debated in a cold style, as our fears had been attempted to be alarmed; and one must be animated to combat them. He alluded to that despondency of the country before the Union was formed; and to the eloquence and opposition of Patrick Henry against the basis on which it was settled; and remarked that Henry's fears were groundless; and then, alluding to Preston and his speech, and passing the highest encomium on his eloquence, and saying that the blood of that departed orator ran in his veins—he added that in a few years he (Preston) would find his fears and apprehensions as groundless about the welfare of the country as Henry had. He spoke of the sword and purse, and shew there was no danger of their union—fears and eloquence were vain on this subject. If any power had been usurped, as the Resolution supposed, let Congress look to it: the simple removal of 8 or 9 millions of the Deposites could not have produced the distress pretended; the Secretary had the right and the power to remove; it was the duty of the Executive to see that it was done, if he thought it ought to be; had it been deemed necessary by those who are now opposed to the measure, and the Secretary had refused and the President had not made him do it, he would have been called a dotard and driveller, instead of an usurper and tyrant. He voted for the Bank in 1816, but would not vote for its renewal unless with modifications. He spoke of the two issues made by the Bank and the people, first in the Presidential and next in the Representative election. Bank got their charter through Congress and it was vetoed; then said they, we must change the counsels of the Nation; here they made the issue; and the President was re-elected upon it; they then looked to Congress again, a triumphant majority against them was then in the House; the Senate can pass no Bill without the concurrence of the House and the signature of the President. And who have created these powers that oppose the will of the Bank? The people. The question was, shall we have Andrew Jackson and no Bank? or a Bank, and any body else?

The question was made and settled by the people; and till he had learned with surprise that the people could not settle this question, he had thought they could settle any question and all questions.

REIS EFFENDI.

How are the mighty fallen!—The Nullifiers, who have the command of the Virginia Legislature, have passed the following resolutions respecting the Bank and the deposits. These resolutions are worthy these new allies of the Nationals of New England. They are equal to the resolves upon the embargo—non-intercourse, and war, which were, in those days, fulminated like the aurora borealis, affording about the same light from the north:—

"Whereas it is deemed essential by the General Assembly of Virginia, that power to levy taxes, to appropriate money, and to control the public revenue, should be made to abide, in practice, where alone it has been confided by our constitution, in the immediate representatives of the people; and whereas all experience of the actual operations of governments demonstrates, that the assumption and exercise by them of unauthorized powers, become precedents, if silently acquiesced in, for progressive and still greater encroachments.

Therefore, Resolved, That the recent act of the President of the United States, exercising a control over the Federal Revenue, by causing the same to be removed on his own responsibility, from the United States Bank, where it had been deposited under authority of an act of Congress, is, in the opinion of this General Assembly, an unauthorized assumption, and dangerous exercise of Executive power.

Resolved, That while this General Assembly will ever sustain the President of the United States in the exercise of such powers as the Constitution has clearly confided to him, it nevertheless contemplates with anxiety and dismay the disposition evinced of late to extend those powers beyond the proper limitation of that instrument; a disposition clearly evinced in the recent subjugation of the Treasury Department of the Federal Government to Executive control, in the exercise of an important discretion, for which it was made solely responsible to Congress.

Deploing, as this General Assembly does, that inference as illegal and unconstitutional, and firmly persuaded that no nation can long maintain its freedom, which surrenders to, or permits to be grasped by, the same hand, a power over the purse and the sword.

Resolved, That our Senators be instructed, and our Representatives be requested, to adopt prompt and efficient measures to vindicate the Constitution, and to redress the evils occasioned by the late unauthorized assumption of power by the President, over the public moneys of the United States.

Resolved, That the General Assembly of Virginia can not sanction the power which has been claimed by Congress to establish a United States Bank, the power not being given to Congress by the Constitution of the United States, as has been frequently and solemnly decided by the General Assembly of Virginia.

In regard to the first resolution, if it have any meaning, it pretends to insinuate what is more openly declared in the next, that the Executive claims the power to levy taxes, appropriate money, and to control the public revenue. It is needless to say, that no such claim has ever been set up—no such power ever exercised. The money of the United States is equally in the Treasury, whether in the local Banks or in Mr Biddle's Bank, and is no more under the control of the President in the one than in the other case.

As to the right and authority of the President to act on this subject, and in the manner he has done, we offer the testimony of Mr Calhoun, the ablest of the Nullifiers—we offer his testimony to the Virginia gentlemen, because we have no doubt they will respect his authority—Mr Calhoun gave this opinion in the recent debate:—

"I cannot doubt that the President has, under the Constitution, the right of removal from office; nor can I doubt the power of removal, wherever it exists, does, from necessity, involve the power of general supervision; not can I doubt that it might be constitutionally exercised in reference to the deposits.—Reverse the present case—suppose the late Secretary, instead of being against, had been in favor of the removal, and that the President, instead of for, had been against it, deeming the removal not only inexpedient, but, under circumstances, illegal; would any man doubt, that under such circumstances, he had a right to remove his Secretary, if it were the only means of preventing the removal of the deposits? Nay would it not be his indispensable duty to have removed him? and, had he not, would not he have been universally and justly held responsible?"

The reader will see that this great light of the Nullifiers admits the right of the Executive, and leaves only the question of expediency to be settled. The people from their log cabins—the men with hard hands—strong muscles and stout hearts—the producing classes will settle this question.

The Virginians say the Bank is unconstitutional—mark that, reader! the Bank is unconstitutional. The removal of the Deposites was a first and necessary step to put down this UNCONSTITUTIONAL BANK.

The United States Bank has now upwards of ten millions of dollars in specie in its vaults—as much as it had before the deposits were removed. Its circulation does not vary much from what it did then, having increased, according to Mr Binney's statement, since that time, about $80,000. The Treasury deposits are now only about $500,000. Its circulation is only about two dollars paper for one of specie in its vaults. It is therefore evident, that the Bank is in as good a condition to discount now, to the full amount of the Government deposits in October, say in round numbers, ten millions, as they were to owe that sum then.

If the United States Bank were to discount, as they might with perfect safety, ten millions, the local Banks could do as much more, and the money market would be relieved. Why then does the United States Bank not discount? Simply because it means to oppress the public into obedience to its will—it intends to force from the country a renewal of its charter. We ask our merchants, who are not under the immediate influence of the Bank, to look at this matter as it really is, and let their indignation fall upon those who are blameable.

POLICE COURT.

George Harvey Barnes was arraigned upon complaint of William Havers, of Portsmouth, for stealing from the Eastern Mail Stage, on the 11th of July last, the sum of $14,800, principally in bills of the Piscataqua Bank.—About $7000, of the money has been recovered. Barnes was arrested in Philadelphia, upon an executive warrant, and brought to this city, by Mr James Pierce, constable, on Thursday evening. As the principal witnesses are now in Philadelphia and Portsmouth, the examination was postponed till the 10th inst, in order to have their testimony. In the mean time, Barnes was ordered to recognize in the sum of $15,000, and committed for the want thereof, with the understanding that if the witnesses should arrive in this city before the day specified, the examination should take place accordingly.

The Tremont Choristers give a benefit Concert at the Temple this evening. They richly merit it, and we recommend it to the patronage of a limited number of our friends—say twelve hundred (more cannot conveniently be accommodated in the hall.) The bill for the occasion, which is an excellent one, will be found in another column.

A correspondent complains of Mr Dickson, in the Ball-room scene, in Mr Hill's new play. He dislikes his gait, his pronunciation, and his winking propensities. There is no disputing about tastes, but we took a peep at the ball last evening, and did not perceive any impropriety in Mr D's demeanor. Wasn't the writer thinking of Paddy Carey?

The Boston Atlas talks about "the clashing of arms" to get back the Deposites—The Bank men have been beaten at the ballot box—if they choose to appeal to the cartridge box, it cannot be doubtful who will take the "spoils."

We learn that the Hon Levi Lincoln was nominated, on Thursday, as a candidate for Congress, to fill the vacancy occasioned by the resignation of Gov. Davis, and has accepted the nomination.

Mr Avery has published the following card, respecting a spurious pamphlet concerning him, issued simultaneously in Providence, New York and Philadelphia. The jury, when they acquitted him, could have had no idea of the work they were creating for the printers. We try to be silent on the subject:—

To the Public.—Having seen it announced that "a pamphlet has been published by William S. Clark, of Providence, purporting to be the production of Ephraim K. Avery," I wish to inform the public that it is a barefaced imposition. I have no concern with William S. Clark or his pamphlet.

The only statement I have ever written of the circumstances whereby I became involved in the late criminal prosecution, will shortly be published by Mr David H. Ela, of Boston, in connexion with a vindication of the result of my trial.

Editors who have given publicity to the notice above mentioned, are requested to insert the contradiction. E. K. AVERY.

The Pressure.—Notwithstanding all the stories which have been lately set afloat by the opposition, it is an indisputable fact that little or no change for the worse has taken place in any of the products of this section of the country. The agriculturalist receives not only a fair, but a liberal price for all he brings to market. Flour, beef, pork, &c. command a ready market, and a good price. To the farmer or agriculturalist then, the times are excellent, and whatever talk about pressure there may be by town speculators, he feels none of it, and cares as little about it.—Pittsburgh Mail.

Counterfeiters detected.—Joseph Augustus Hodgkiss was arrested in Montreal on the 22d inst. and bills to the amount of £900 in notes of $5, on the Burlington (Vt) Bank, found in his possession, some signed, others in blank, together with the steel plates on which they were printed. Thomas A. Lewis, alias Thomas Adams, a celebrated counterfeit engraver, was found concealed in his garret, and was also taken into custody. The bills were remarkably well executed. They were both committed to prison, to await their trial in Feb. next.—Trans.

Pure Water.—At a meeting of the Common Council, held last evening, a communication from the Mayor, relative to the introduction of pure water into the city, was received and ordered to be printed. A letter was received from the President of the Massachusetts Charitable Mechanic Association, inviting the Board to attend at the delivery of a lecture at the Masonic Temple, on Wednesday evening next, by Dr J. V. C. Smith, on the same subject to which the communication of the Mayor relates. The invitation was accepted. Ibid.

A Manufacturing Town.—A sturdy looking farmer from Vermont, was lately passing along one of our streets, just as a host of little uproarious urchins were let out of school. Two or three of the larger boys were dragging along in high glee a huge wicker basket placed on a sled, in which were deposited for safe keeping some three or four of these miniature editions of men and women. "By golly!" exclaimed the astonished Vermont, "Lowell is a manufacturing place—Humph! Children by basket fulls!"—Lowell Journal.

The following singular instance of the ferocity of a boar occurred in the vicinity of this city a short time since. A horse having been put into a meadow in which were a boar and some store pigs, was attacked by the former, which, it is supposed, instantly inflicted such a wound upon it as to render it incapable of effectual resistance; the entrails were torn out, and the poor animal, whilst in this state, being set upon by the whole of the pigs, was partly devoured alive.—Hereford Jour.

Anecdote.—We were amused not long since at hearing the following question addressed to a landlady by an eccentric genius of our town. Stepping into the door, he observed, "Will you, ma'am, give me a drink of water, for I am so hungry I don't know where to stay tonight." We doubt whether more meaning could be embodied in so few words.

A young lady, named Mary Jane Green, residing in the Northern Liberties, Philadelphia, was so severely burnt on Thursday, by her clothes taking fire, that she is not expected to live.

In the jail of Montreal, a man named Labonne, under sentence of death, attempted suicide last week; and two other prisoners in the same jail attempted the murder of a fellow prisoner about the same time.

MASSACHUSETTS LEGISLATURE.

Friday, Jan. 31.—In the Senate, Bill passed and sent down, to incorporate the Manufacturers Mutual Fire Insurance Company.

Passed to be engrossed—Bills to confirm location of Z. Killey's wharf, and additional to act to establish Boston and Lowell R. R. Co. The Bill on attachment of Real Estate was passed and sent down. The question was taken by yeas and nays.

In the House, the Bill to restrain the use of ardent spirits, and regulate the granting of licenses, passed to a second reading in course. An order was presented for inquiry into the expediency of providing that no person shall be allowed to vote in parish or religious Society Meetings, unless he shall have paid such tax or assessment as shall have been laid within two years, and laid on the table.

The Committee on the subject of making County Commissioners, supervisors of town roads, were instructed to inquire into the expediency of making them supervisors of all other roads.

The order of Mr Allen of Worcester, instructing the committee to which was referred the memorial on the subject of masonry, to report forthwith, was taken up, when a discussion ensued upon the propriety of adopting the same, and rejected.—Adjourned.

The Southern Mail arrived at twenty minutes before twelve last night, but brought no Washington papers. We are consequently without any later advices from Congress.—The papers received are entirely barren of interest.

Double Safes, which I purchased of the Messrs S. A. &
W. G. PIERCE, was in my office in this town when the office was burned on the 24 day of November last—the safe weighing 700 lbs fell from the second story into the cellar, and was exposed to an intense heat for nearly three hours. It was for a long time literally red hot. It contained all the account books, notes, and court papers, that were in my office; and no paper was in the least degree burnt or rendered illegible."
JOHN S. ABBOTT.

in it at the time of the fire, are now at the Agent's
